PRACTICE NOTE: A motion for extension of time will be held seven business days plus three calendar day by the clerk of the appellate courts for response from opposing counsel. Rule 5.01(c). A motion which request twenty days of less will be acted upon immediately. See Rule 5.01(d). An adverse party consent will be considered but is not controlling. See Rule 5.02(b).

Motion for extension of time to file brief is perhaps the most common motion received by the clerk of the appellant courts. Even though they are common, there are still pitfalls to avoid when requesting a little bit more time to finish up a brief. First, every effort should be made to proofread the document for internal consistency. If the motion request 30 days at the beginning, it should also request 30 days at the end. Second, it is a good idea to check Supreme Court Rule 5.02 to see if additional information is required, for example, the attorney must give "reasons constituting, excusable neglect" if the motion is filed after the expiration of the existing brief due date. And finally, practitioners should know that motions for time are generally given in 30 day increments. There will never be an extension longer than 30 days. An attorney is free to request fewer than 30 days. However, he or she should be aware that the request will still count as an extension given by the court, even if all 30 days were not used.
